Master of Ecclesial Theology (24 hours)

For those who have completed Emmaus' BDiv, MACM, MATS, or an equivalent theological master's degree (e.g. MDiv), and are interested in a deeper program of research and writing, Emmaus offers a Master of Ecclesial Theology (24 hours). This pathway is Emmaus' most academically challenging and rigorous and is designed to push students to cogently communicate, defend, analyze, and critique the ideas of others as well as their own in conversations with their professor and fellow students towards an ultimate thesis project. The MET is a practitioner's research degree, built around the application of theology in and for the church.

MET Courses:

Core Program

Biblical Theology for the Church
Historical Theology for the Church
Dogmatic Theology for the Church
Practical Theology for the Church

Concentration Seminars

Reading Seminar I
Reading Seminar II
Research Seminar I
Research Seminar II

MET courses align with the standards of other graduate courses, with the exception of reading and research seminars. MET reading seminars are expected to cover 2,500–3,500 pages of discipline-specific assigned readings in each seminar to cover a comprehensive bibliography for their discipline. MET research seminars will move from an initial prospectus and draft to a final thesis of 50–75 pages. The completed thesis is then presented and defended before a panel of their program supervisor and one outside reader.

Available MET Concentrations:

Biblical Languages
Church History
Biblical Counseling
Theology and Culture
Ministry and the Christian Life
